DEVELOPMENT OF HAMILTONIAN IS WORTHY OF NOTE

Early Pamphlet Form of Four Pages Has Grown into Present Splendid Year Book

RESULT OF TWO PERIODICALS

Hamilton Review and Hamilton Record Also Interest

(This is the fifth of a series of five articles on early Hamilton publications. Editor's note.)

The story of the "Hamiltonian" will be the final installment of the brief series of articles dealing with Hamilton publications. However this does not mean that there have not been other periodicals issued at one time or another from the college, besides the ones discussed in this series. There were unimportant, or were not official student publications.

Perhaps the most famous was the "Hamilton Review", which was published as a rival to "Lit," by the Emerson Literary Society for 14 years, from 1887 to 1901, six times during the year. The nature of this journal was very similar to that of "Lit." Another publication, and one which was to greatly influence the development of the "Hamiltonian," was a suppelmentary catalogue. This unique publication was produced by the students and administration as a supplement to the regular College Bulletin. It contined, as well as the material found in the Bulletin concerning the requirements and courses of the College, illustrations, lists of the classes, fraternities, and Commencement programs. This illustrated catalogue appeared only a few times, and united with the "Hamiltonian" in 1867.

The history of Hamilton publications would not be complete without mention of one which, in many ways, was the most remarkable of all Hamilton's many journalistic productions. This was the "Hamilton Record," published by President Stryker quarterly for 14 years, from 1902 to 1916. The purpose of this journal was, avowedly, "to furnish a means of information to all Hamilton graduates concerning the life and work of their Alma Mater."

The "Hamiltonian," as it is today, is the child of two publications, the influence of both of which is seen in the book as is now appears. The "Hamiltonian" was originally published, under that name, in 1858, by the Class of 1859. Later, in 1867, it united with the illustrated catalogue, to produce the early "Hamiltonian" in its modern form.

The story of the "Hamiltonian" is the most interesting of all Hamilton's interesting publications. The evolution of the present splendid volume from the first crude sheet called "Hamiltonian" in 1858, is the most remarkable journalistic development which the college has witnessed. For the first "Hamiltonian" consisted of nothing more than four pages, published in newspaper form, and containing lists of fraternities, societies, students, prize-winners, and Commencement programs. Nothing except this cursory summary appears in the early numbers, except single editorials which invariably give the purpose of the book, and include a discussion of the conditions of the college, and its prospects for the future.

The editorial in the original issue declares that "'the editors of the Hamiltonian present to their patrons and the public, an index of the officers, honors, and associations of Hamilton College...." The writer concludes with a singularly prophetic suggestion: "Such acquisitions and the class of students now in attendance presage increasing prosperity to the institution, for the record of which we confidently refer the public to the future issues of the Hamiltonian." Nowhere, indeed, may so accurate, detailed, graphic and fascinating a record of Hamilton's devolopment be found than in the "Hamiltonians" from 1859 to 1925.

After the union of the two publications in 1867, the "Hamiltonian" appeared in pamphlet form. It was larger than before, containing additional lists and records. The most interesting feature of these early books was the revelation of the great number of clubs and organization with which the college was then replete. The list of miscellaneous organizations in the Hamiltonian of the class

PROF. AND MRS. SHUTE GIVE PIANO RECITALS

The program of concert music presented by Professor and Mrs. Berrian R. Shute in the music room Saturday evening for the members of the faculty and their wives was repeated Monday evening for those undergraduates especially interested in music. Members of the college choir and students taking courses in music were invited for the Monday evening recital and each student in the music course was allowed to invite two guests.

Both the recital for the faculty and the one for undergraduates were well attended and in both cases the audiences expressed themselves as being more than pleased at the musical program rendered.

SEXTET IS DEFEATED IN OPENING GAME, 6-3

Middlebury Outplays Buff and Blue Hockey Team for Victory

Outpassed and outshot, the Buff and Blue hockey team went down to a 6-3 defeat at the hands of the heavier Middlebury sextet, in the opening game of the season here last Saturday evening. This game marked Hamilton's first loss to Middlebury in three years.

After the first flash of form in the initial period when the local skaters pushed in all of their goals, the Hamilton men did not seem to be abel to get within scoring distance of the Middlebury goal. Time after time they started down the ice only to lose the puck near the middle of the rink. In spots, however, the pass work was exceptionally fine.

On defense the team showed keenly the loss of Stanley at goal guard, for the team might have had slightly more confidence with an experienced goalie behind it. Despite the fact that he allowed four shots to slip by him, Scovel played a fairly good game at goal, making several difficult stops.

The accurate shooting and the pass work of the Middlebury men accounted for most of their scores. They completely outpassed the Hill squad.

The visitors used a style of fiveman defense which the Hill skaters found it practically impossible to pierce. This defense coupled with the fact that Hamilton was outweighed nearly 20 pounds to the man accounts for Hamilton's failure to score.

The visitors uncorked a fast attack in the first few minutes of play, Whittemore chalking up the first tally 20 seconds after the opening whistle and repeating the act a few minutes later to make the score 2-0.

At this point the Hill skaters showed their only real hockey of the game. After dribbling through the opponents' defense, Ingalls registered Hamilton's first goal. A. Browne knotted the count a few minutes later by a long shot from the side. Toward the close of the period Bald broke thru the visitors' defense and shot, Ingalls pushing it past the goalie. The period ended with the score 3-2 in Hamilton's favor.

In the opening minutes of the second period neither team seemed able to score. Then Kelly shot one thru from the side on a follow-in shot to tie the score again. For a few minutes the defense tightened, but towards the close of the period Middlebury's passing attack began to take effect and the visitors chalked up three goals in rapid succession, giving them the lead which they held till the end of the game.

In the final session the Hill skaters began a bombardment of the visitors' goal and were prevented from scoring only by several clever stops on the part of the Middlebury goal keep. In this period the Buff and Blue showed to better advantage inasmuch as the visitors failed to get within scoring distance during the period.

Ingalls, playing his first game with the varsity, showed up best for the Buff and Blue. Despite his handicap in lack of weight, he was the strongest man on the offense as well as the leading scorer. Whittemore and Kelly were the stellar performers for Middlebury. It was mainly because of their pass work that the visitors were able to break through the Hill defense. They shared the scoring honors between them, each getting three goals.

MIRACLE PLAY AND CONCERT ARE PRESENTED IN COMMONS SUNDAY

Hall Is Jammed for Combined Annual Performance—Miracle Play Adapted from Pageant of Shearman and Tailors in Coventry Cycle—Special Altar Erected for Occasion.

Sunday night in the Hall of Commons Professor Fancher's class in dramatic interpretation together with the College Choir ably presented the annual Christmas concert and Miracle Play. Because of the limited capacity of the Hall, visitors were limited to those bearing cards of invitation.

The play is an adaptation from the Pageant of the Shearman and Tailors in the Coventry Cycle of Miracles which was first presented in 1534. It presents in simple but graphic manner the story of the Nativity as it appeared to the people of four centuries ago. The Miracle Plays represent an art form, cultivated for 600 years by all Europe, that was educative, religious, and when understood, beautiful.

In simple dramatic form the play presents the prophecy of Isaiah, the Annunciation, the homely scene with Joseph, the journey to Bethlehem, the visit of the shepherds, King Herod's jealousy, the gifts of the Wise Men, and the flight to Egypt.

Before the presentation of the play, the choir, in its first appearance of the college year, gave an elaborate program of Chirstmas music, including a number of 15th and 16th Century carols such as "While by My Sheep," "The Miracle of St. Nicholas," "The Inn," "Touro-Louro-Touro." At intervals in the play the choir also sang the Chorus of the Heavenly Host.

Desiring to reproduce as accurately as possible the first presentations of the Miracle Plays that were made in the churches, the class installed an altar on the stage. The imagery proruced by simple staging and lighting was decidedly effective. There were few inaccuracies or inconsistencies in the production as presented.

The students who participated played their parts generally with understanding and sincerity. The best acting in the production appeared in the difficult scenes in King Herod's court. Pitcher, as the tyrannical Herod, convincingly showed his audience the nature of that cruel king. Beardsley gave a clever interpretation of the part of court jester.

The role of the Virgin Mary was well played by Heyl. A touch of realism was added to the play when the there Kings of the East, portrayed by Jones, Bauer, and Estelow, majestically walked down the aisle, clothed in the flowing robes of the East. The presentation of the Kings' gifts to the Child was effectively staged, particularly with regard to the grouping on the platform.

The complete cast of characters was as follows: The Prophet Isaiah, Mosher; Gabriel, Corby; Virgin Mary, Heyl; Joseph, Miller; Shepherds, Graves, Dold, Hallock; Nuntius, Beardsley; Herod, Pitcher, Kings, Jones, Bauer, Estelow; Soldiers, Bennett, C. G. Smith; Pages, Baker and Mangan.

Undergraduate Association Holds Annual Fall Meeting

At the annual December meeting of the college held last Wednesday evening in the Hall of Commons, three new undergraduate members were elected to the Executive Council: Warren, Brockway, and Wylie, all of the class of 1928. The college voted also on the various constitutional changes proposed by the Executive Council, chief among which was the regulation that all managers shall receive letters corresponding to those given in the sport they are managing, excepting that the managers' letters shall be blue on a white background and shall be worn on white sweaters only.

The college re-elected Professor A. P. Saunders president of the Association for Undergraduate Activities, and Professors F. H. Ristine and W. M. Carruth as faculty members. The following alumni members were also re-elected: Joseph Rudd, '90, Robert D. Fraser, '08, and Sherrill Sherman, '04.

The Tau of Delta Kappa Epsilon announced to the undergraduate body the presentation of a basketball cup, to be given to the crowd winning the annual winter inter-fraternity basketball tournament, and to become the possession of that crowd which shall have held the championship for three successive years. The cup is given to encourage friendly inter-crowd rivalry.

All managerships shall be made senior managerships and assistant managers shall manage freshman teams.

Managers shall be awarded letters in their junior year at the final meeting of the Undergraduate Association.

The following men were awarded insingia: Football: Letter—Thomas, Olmsted, Williamson, Bookhout, Burns, Hewlett, Martin, Fletcher, Wormuth, Brockway, Pierce, Scovel, Keeports, Warren, Richards, Doane, Reinecke, MacKenzie, Chatfield, and Bush. Full numerals: Smith, Redmond, Schneider. Half numerals: De Sormo.

Cross Country: Letter—Clark, Vosburgh, S. Baker. Full numerals: Ahner. Half numerals: E. Clark, S. Donaldson, G. Clark.

Soccer: Letter—Forshay, Britten, Howk, Fuess, Fisher, Rowley, Warfield, Chan, Montgomery. Full numerals: Dayton, Tolles, Bald, Bauer, Yuan, Normile, Almirall.

Freshman Soccer: Full numerals: Lawton, D. Carpenter, MacIntyre, Kavakos, Perry, Bond, Dixon, Sliter, Carlisle, Kinsey, Webster, DuVivier, Hamlin.

Warren, Brockway, and Wylie, '28, Are Elected To Executive Council

At the fall meeting of the Undergraduate Association held in the Hall of Commons at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, the undergraduate body placed their trust in Ernie Warren, Bob Brockway, and Max Wylie to represent the interests of the students in the Executive Council. Al Bald, the fourth man on the primary ballot, was eliminated in the evening's voting. All these men are members of the class of '28. With these men, three representatives of the faculty and three of the alumni make up the complete council.

Warren, throughout his stay at Hamilton, has been especially active in undergraduate activiiies. Last spring he was elected to Was Los, honorary junior society. He has won his letter in baseball for two years, playing regularly at third base both years. He is also a member of the Instrumental Club. Ernie has just finished the football season, playing halfback. He is a member of Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

Brockway is another who has ploughed his way to the front thru his extra-curricular activities. The last two years have found him a pillar of strength to the football team at his center position. Last spring he made a name for himself in the annals of track. He was one of the high scorers of last season, gaining points in the shot put, javelin, and discus events. His specialty, however, is the discus, which he hurled to a new college record last spring. He is captain of track for the coming year. He is a member of the Instrumental Club and choir, and belongs to Was Los.

Wylie has also forced his way to recognition by his fellow students. He entered with the class of '27 and was president of his class sophomore year, but had to stay out of college the next year on account of illness. He is one of the Buff and Blue cheer leaders, business manager of the Charlatans, a member of the Honor Court and was a member of the old Royal Gaboon board. He is also a member of the Glee Club and quartet and the new symphony orchestra. He is a member of Delta Upsilon.

AMBITIOUS PROGRAM PLANNED BY CLUBS

Preliminary arrangements for the Musical Clubs' trips have been practically completed. This year's schedule is the most ambitious the Clubs have ever undertaken, 18 engagements being planned during the Easter vacation. As yet a number of dates are open, including March 25, 28, 29, 30 and April 2, and the management would be glad to hear from alumni or students who could suggest possible concerts in the vicinity of New York for these dates. In addition to the Easter trip, the Clubs are planning a weekend trip to Gloversville and Albany, and a Western trip to Batavia, Warsaw and Rochester.

EDITORIAL IS CAUSE OF VARYING COMMENT

Life's Attitude Toward Conference Ruling Arouses Criticism

Aroused by the recent editorial in Hamilton Life in which the new N. Y. S. I. A. C. regulation that four conference football and four conference basketball games must be played each season by each member of the conference was attacked, "The Hill News", St. Lawrence's publication, has taken objection to the attitude of Life in an editorial derisively entitled "I Won't Play." On the other hand, "The Campus," Rochester University's paper, though condemning St. Bonaventure's attitude in dropping out of the conference, sympathizes with Hamilton Life in its position.

The Hill News takes issues with Life in its condemnation of the commercializing tendencies of the council in attempting to promote a Little Ten League and championship. The editorial claimed that competition for the title is only secondary, that the "fundamental purpose of the conference is, namely, the unifying of intercollegiate rules in regard to eligibility, officers and professionalism."

However, what drew fire from the St. Lawrence paper was more, as the editorial puts it, the fact that "Hamilton Life takes a condescending, self-righteous attitude in claiming that at the time of the formation of the conference, the Buff and Blue 'had no dirty linen to air,' that there were no great benefits to gain by becoming a member, but that it joined the conference just to lend its moral support to the principles involved."

The editorial went on to say that the other colleges had no "dirty linen to air" either, that because they joined the league did not "signify that they were guilty of dirty athletics." The fact that before the conference was formed there were many different standards of eligiblity did not say that athletics were dirty, but "it did make athletic competition between these colleges unfair."

Although it has been reported that St. Bonaventure has withdrawn from the conference because of the eligibility rules, such a severing of relations has not as yet been definitely made. However, Rochester University's paper says concerning this, "No regrets need be felt, for if a member cannot maintain the standards of the conference, it is better that it severs its connections."

In relation to Hamilton, The Campus says, "Hamilton's situation is different. It finds that, in order to subscribe to the new conference ruling, it would be necessary to cancel three of the football games scheduled for next fall and substitute conference opponents."

In closing, the editorial expressed the following opinion, "There is, on the other hand, a certain moral encouragement furnished by contests between institutions representing the same high standards. Surely it must be possible to modify the arrangement in order to insure Hamilton's participation in the conference. At the same time, every encouragement should be offered to more intra-conference engagements, in order to bind the member colleges in a closer and more sympathetic union."

Dr. and Mrs. Hauch entertained the German Club at their home on Thursday evening, Dec. 16, with an informal supper. Following the meal, the members of the Club made speeches, sang German songs, and spent a most enjoyable social evening. Mr. Bachmann read some amusing German dialect verse.

WOOLLCOTT, '09, PLEASES LARGE AUDIENCE HERE

Large Crowd Hears New York's "Most Dramatic Critic" Deliver Second Myers' Lecture

INTRODUCED BY DR. SAUNDERS

"Confessions of an Ink-Stained Wretch" Is Subject

Say "Alexander Woollcott" and you have said the greater part of the lecture that he gave in the Chapel last Friday evening. "The Confessions of an Ink-stained Wretch" were as enlightening as they sound, but the real entertainment of the evening was the man himself, or perhaps in better words, that indescribable and inimitable wit that seems so integral a part of him.

Dr. Saunders introduced Mr. Woollcott, the Myers lecturer, Old Grad of Hamilton, as "One, who with Mr. Robert Rudd, was the bright and shining light of the class of '09." The Hill was left in total darkness when the two left, was "slightly" illuminated when Mr. Rudd returned, and restored to its entire brilliance Friday night, thus jested Dr. Saunders. Then, when Mr. Woollcott had opened his lecture by classifying the papers he had in his hand: "These are notes," he observed that Dr. Saunders was one of the few professors in the College under whom he had not studied. Hence, he supposed, was the justification of the "light" statement.

It would be impossible to try to present in any adequate manner the quarter of an hour or more of rare humor that followed the opening of Mr. Woollcott's speech, or for that matter, any of the scintillation of wit that brightened up all of his more serious moments. There were a few remarks, however, that scintillated more violently than others. He commented on the usualness of his topic for a lecture, but considered more unusual still the common title for all of Benchley's lectures: "Through the Alimentary Canal with Gun and Camera." Then he characterized the "outbreak of bronchitis" near the end of a speech as a "particular kind of dramatic criticism" in a sort of class by itself. On another occasion he was locating New Rochelle, which he said was but a stone's throw from New York, adding "and they often do!"

At length, as did Mr. Woollcott, this article comes to the serious part of his speech. He began his career, so it would seem, by getting all the cash prizes he could corral before leaving college. Then he applied for the position of high school principal in Hudson. He was asked if he could thrash the boys in the senior class if need be, "And so I became a newspaper man," he concluded. His first job was that of a reporter on the New York Times, when he came into intimate contact with the famous Becker case, the sinking of the Titanic, and other events, that told from his standpoint "on the inside" had a new significance for his listeners.

Interpolating extraneous thoughts, as he often did, Mr. Woolcott told how he helped the Theta Delts rush one year when attending Hamilton. He dressed up, so he said, in his oldest and dirtiest clothes, sat on the railing of the Alpha Delt house, and asked sundry freshmen if they "Did not want to join our frat?"

After a few years of reporting for the Times, the lecturer was called to war. He told of his experiences on board the transport, of his indeterminate appearance when in uniform, but more at length of the "Stars and Stripes," an A. E. F. newspaper, that he and several other doughboys were ordered to publish in France. He used this paper to show why and how a newspaper is successful for the simple reason that the "Stars and Stripes" was successful and a great power in the A. E. F. First, it was written and read by men of the same level. "Most city papers," he said, "read as though they were written by the lions in front of the Public Library." The second reason for a paper's success is in its telling the truth. It is easy to detect either the written or spoken "bunk"; a successful newspaper never tries to feed its readers untruths.

The reporter has Mr. Woollcott's entire sympathy, because he is always in fear lest he has turned something in that is wrong. "He is like the surgeon who wakes in the middle of the night in a cold sweat, wondering if

CONCRETE SUGGESTIONS

There is, we suppose, a tendency among undergraduate editors of college publications to delve into the realms of the impractical, the unattainable. Editorials upon such nebulous and indefinite conceptions as college spirit and tendencies in collegiate dress can be made pleasingly vague enough to attract little or no attention. Psychological problems arising from undergraduate customs can be pointed out and their evil consequences shown. Quite obviously no one can be definitely condemned for these conditions and consequently the rsponsibility for reform can be placed in no definite place.

In order to escape, then, the possibility of being accused of dwelling in the land of the impractical, of idly seeking an undergraduate Utopia, either curricular or extra-curricular, we wish to offer two very definite, very concrete suggestions which we believe would, without too great cost or effort on the part of the college, be of a decided advantage to the undergraduates. We are, however, far from sanguine in our hopes that these suggestions will be taken. We merely throw them on the table in the fond expectation that with the passing of time and the meeting of numerous committees they may eventually see the light of fulfillment.

In the first place, we advocate the rebuilding and repairing of the board walk up College Hill, particularly in its most obviously missing portions below the arbor. To be really efficacious, a board walk should start somewhere and end somewhere. It should not, at least according to our board walk standards, meander nonchalantly down the side of a hill, its course abruptly interrupted here and there by patches of shale, mud, ashes, and pebbles.

It is generally admitted that undergraduates should use the sidewalk in going down the Hill. Students, walking down the road, slow up traffic and constitute a real difficulty in the navigation of the incline by even the most astute driver. Yet undergraduates cannot be expected to choose the narrow, muddy, slippery walk in preference to the broad, paved street. All of which holds true for sleighing as well as for walking. A few feet of lumber and a couple of Mr. Burton's expert carpenters could very easily solve the difficulties.

In the second place we should like to call to the attention of the authorities the truly deplorable condition of the showers in the gymnasium. The shower room in the gym is certainly the most used in the college. Undergraduates participating in gym classes during practically every hour of the day, members of varsity and freshman teams practicing every afternoon and every other evening, and players from other colleges appearing in athletic contests here are all forced into the same shower room. Not at the same time, it is true. But when the combined hockey and basketball squads are attempting to take showers immediately after practice, one can figuratively walk through the shower room without getting wet.

With the closing off of the north door of the shower room, there is now an abundance of room for the installation of at least four additional showers. Such additions would double the present nominal capacity of the shower room and would increase its usefulness in nearly the same ratio.

There should also, we feel certain, be certain definite improvements made on the present showers. The four sprays now extant, at least two of which should have been long since retired to the historical collection in the Biology-Geology Building, should be thoroughly rejuvenated and their power to respond to thermostatic regulation considerably increased.

One more derogatory remark concerning the gym shower room might be cast before we turn our back upon the entire matter. We refer to the janitor service, which, while bad enough in the locker room, is at its lowest ebb in the shower room. Unless looks are even more than usually deceiving, the floor of the shower room has not been scoured since early in the fall. (Why not be optimistic about it?) It should be thoroughly cleaned every day. The blisters, floor burns, and ordinary skin-breaks received in the gym every day are more than likely to become infected by coming into contact with the dirty floor of the shower room.

Here, then, are two concrete suggestions which we offer without too great expectations of their acceptance. Neither of them would be prohibitively expensive and both of them would tend toward alleviating some of the minor ills which beset this campus.

MANY UNDERGRADUATES RECEIVE SCHOLARSHIPS

One man in every three at Hamilton College receives financial assistance without obligation, from either the State or from College funds, according to figures given out recently at the President's Office. There are in all 155 men whose tuition is wholly or partly paid by these scholarships and $18,480 is expended annually by the State and the College for this purpose

By far the largest number of these scholarships come under the classification of "general." There are 98 of these paying a total of $10,730 a term. No student may hold one of these scholarships unless he is in real need. None of them are given to students who have other means of supporting themselves and none are given to holders of State scholarships.

Next come the State scholarships, awarded on the basis of marks secured in the State Regents examinations. There are 46 of these, all of which pay $100 annually. There are six prize scholarships, given for exceptional work in college, and five special scholarships.

The Leavenworth foundation of $12,000 is an interesting fund. The income from this money has not been used in over 10 years because it was stipulated by the donor that the holder must bear the name of Leavenworth.

FOUR PLAN TO ATTEND MILWAKEE CONVENTION

Four men from the Hamilton branch of the Y. M. C. A. have registered as delegates to the national convention to be held at Milwaukee from Dec. 28 to Jan. 1. The delegates will be H. Swartwout, '27, A. W. Browne, '27, L. D. Sanborne, '27, and P. G. Corby, '28.

It is expected that nearly 3,000 delegates, proportionally representing the men's and women's colleges thruout the country will attend the convention. The theme of the conference will be an examination of the fundamentals of religion.

Subjects that form a vital part of twentieth century daily life will be discussed by such men as H. S. Coffin, Reinhold Niebuhr, Glenn Clark, Richard Roberts of Canada, T. T. Lew of China, G. G. Kullma of Switzerland, G. A. Studdert-Kennedy of England and numerous other world famous authorities.

The members from New York State will travel by a special train. It will be necessary for the Hamilton men to pay at least one half of their expenses. It is expected that the trip, however, will more than compensate for the necessary expenditure.

The annual New York Alumni Dinner will be held Friday, Jan. 21, at the Hotel Commodore, New York City.

ST. LAWRENCE DOWNS LOCAL QUINTET, 46-26

Strong Scarlet Team Outplays Hamilton Throughout Game

Poor passing and inability to score when opportunity offered, either during the actual play or in foul shots, sent Hamilton down to defeat before St. Lawrence last Tuesday by a score of 46-26. Only occasionaly did the Buff and Blue display the form shown in the Hobart game on Dec. 10. St. Lawrence was strong both on the offensive and defensive and was never headed throughout the game.

Burkman of St. Lawrence accounted for 16 of the Scarlet's tallies and was particularly good both at dribbling and passing. The work of Rowley, who scored nearly half of the Hamilton points, featured the local's play.

St. Lawrence scored early in the first half and increased its lead as the game progressed. The five-man defense tried by the Buff and Blue failed to stop the Scarlet, which was able to break through along the side lines. The end of the period found the Northerners leading 22-14.

The second half was characterized by much rough playing on the part of both teams. St. Lawrence forged far in the lead by the close of the game, the Hamilton playing growing less and less effective. Occasional rallies on the part of the Buff and Blue netted 12 points during the period.

A comparison of the foul shooting of the teams shows that, while 16 fouls were called on both, St. Lawrence was able to turn 12 into scores, whereas Hamilton made only six good. Two men on each team were retired because of personals.

St. Lawrence this year has an unusually good quintet, as is witnessed by the fact that Yale was able to beat the Scarlet on Wednesday by only 26-25. This was the last game for the Buff and Blue before the Christmas vacation.

HAMILTON MEN SUGGEST ROD AND GUN CLUB HERE

Undergraduate interest in the sports of hunting and fishing has as last materialized into a proposal for a club of Hamilton men to be known as the Hamilton Gun and Rod Club. At present few students have any opportunity to enjoy hunting or fishing during the college year. It is believed that the proposed club will widen interest in the two sports and yield more opportunities for their pursuit.

Although plans are not wholly complete, it has been proposed that the club shall consists of 28 men, seven being admitted from each class. This number, however, is only tentative and may be increased. The club will conduct frequent competitions among its members and award prizes to the winners. Arrangements will be made to provide a range somewhere in the vicinity for those interested in trapshooting. Members of the club will be given opportunities to thoroughly acquaint themselves with the game laws of the state. There is also a prospect of a Rifle Club being formed, in which event the Government will furnish ammunition.

All students and members of the faculty who are interested in the formation of the new Gun and Rod Club should see some one of the following men who have been instrumental in starting the project: Donohue, '27, Kutz, '27, Hassard, '28, Loomis, '28, Tatlock, '28, Watters, '28, Chatfield, '29, and Carpenter, '30.

—The annual banquet of the Hamilton Alumni Association of Southern New York will be held at the Arlington Hotel, Binghamton, Thursday evening, Dec. 30. Dr. Ferry will be the principal speaker. All undergraduates residing in Southern New York are urged to attend and to signify their intentions of so doing to L. S. Mulford, '22, as soon as possible.

—Due to the coming holidays, the next issue of Life will appear Jan. 18, 1927.

OCCASIONAL VERSE

By Carp's Poet Laureate
Sunday School is over,
And we are going home.
Chorus—
Goodbye, Goodbye,
For we are going home...

Why Not?

Assignment in Composition 1-2: "For next week, I want you to write me a theme without words."

Or doesn't it make any difference?

If the Myers Lecture Committee wants a real attraction, it might schedule a debate between Mr. Thomas and Mr. Bookhout on whether we should raise the manager to the position of the athlete or whether we should raise the athlete to the position of the manager.

According to current statistics, 110 Hamilton freshmen are pledged to the various raternities. According to precedence, upperclassman advice, and man's innate gregariousness, 110 Hamilton freshmen will hand out the following line of bologna: "Yea, I pledged Chi Chi Chi. Wonderful gang of fellows. Best fraternity on the Hill. Ya ougta see our chapter house at Alfred. They tell me it's a beaut. Honors? Say, we got more captains, letter-men, managers, Phi Betes, Kappa Betes, freshmen, editors, faculty, alumni, reporters, fur coats, singers, actors, athletes, debaters, football men, tea dances (or what you will, as the case may be) than any other crowd up there!" And each pledged freshman who reads this knows that approximately 100 of his classmates will be wrong.

There once was a man from Berlin
Who had whiskers all over his chin.
When asked: "Do they gall?"
He replied: "Not at all,
They might better stick out than stick in."

Dear Carpe Diem:
Please, wouldn't it be a good idea not to have any classes the day before vacation? Also the day after? BILL SQUIRES,

Just how long ago was this bird editor?

Dear Carp:
As an ex-editor of Carpe Diem (one of the first so-called editors) permit me to ask whathell is the tempest in the teapot about up there? I haven't read Life very consistently this year (circulation mgr., please notice) but when I have, this ex-ed. wishes to state that Carpe seemed excellent, in fact, better than it has been in a couple of years.
Thanking you, I am, etc.

Thoughts on the Cinema

"'Old Ironsides' brought every person in the audience to their feet."—New York World. Well, what of it? So did "Tessie Tinfoil, the Tantalizing Typist," and every other movie ever produced. Statistics show that the average movie-goer spends more time standing up than sitting down. If it isn't one thing, it's another. First we have to stand up to let the fat lady go by in order to get a seat in the center of the row—and as soon as we are comfortably seated, we have to get up again to let her go back, because she has forgotten her glasses and has to go farther front. Then, as like as not, the orchestra will play "The Star Spangled Banner," and we will have to get up again or be glared at. In fact, most movies bring us to our feet before they are finished, because they are so rotten (the movies) that we can't sit thru them. So they'll have to get a better adverisement for that before they can persuade us to see "Old Ironsides.'

A young lady was overheard to ask P. C. Sayes, the Sig senior delegation, the other day, "Oh, Phillie, do they make all the freshmen at Hamilton wear those little blue and white buttons? Everyone I've seen has one on."

REGULATIONS DRAWN FOR SAGE BUILDING

Department Makes Definite Rules for Skaters

Several rules have been formulated by the Department of Physical Education for the use of the hockey rink during the coming winter. It is urged that all the students should obey them carefully so that everyone may have an opportunity to use the rink at the proper scheduled times. A list of the regulations follows:

1. There shall be two kinds of occasions when the rink may be used, known as general and special, at which other than undergraduates shall be admitted. The general occasions shall come not oftener than once a month and shall have admission without tickets to all who may desire to use the ice.

2. The special occasions shall include Sunday afternoons from 2 to 5 o'clock and such other times as may be found possible, and shall have admission by ticket only. The tickets for these occasions shall be distributed to the families of the faculty, of the local trustees, and of the local alumni.

3. Undergraduates shall ordinarily be admitted to any and all occasions, both general and special, without tickets.

4. The use of speed skates and hockey sticks on the ice shall be absolutely prohibited on all general and special occasions.

5. All who are in attendance at games where an admission price is charged shall be free to use the ice after the game is over until 11 p. m., at which hour the building shall be darkened and locked.

6. All regulations are subject to change without notice and are dependent upon ice conditions.

The following hours are scheduled regularly throughout the week for the use of the various classes and teams:

Juniors and Seniors: 9:30 to 12:30 a. m., daily, during assigned Physical Education hours.

Freshmen and Sophomores: 1:30 to 3:30, except Saturdays; 3:30 to 4:30, Tuesdays and Thursdays, during Physical Education hours.

Varsity Team Practice: 3:30 to 6, except Saturday, and 4:30 to 6, Tuesday and Thursday.

Freshman Team Practice: 7:30 to 9 p. m., Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Special Occasion: 12:30 to 1:30 daily except Sundays.

DEVELOPMENT OF YEAR BOOK IS INTERESTING

of 1872 includes the Mendelssohn Society, the Quintette Club, the Owl Club, two Chess Clubs, Eta Nu Pi (motto: "by patient grubbing we win success"); the "Phonagraphicusses"; the Mineralogical Club; and four very mysterious organizations known as K.K.K., G. X., A. F. N., and Dey Chi (motto "dum vivimus vivamus.")

The "Hamiltonian" was published in pamphlet form until 1890, when the class of 1891 published their annual in book form.

The extensive feature section of recent years traces its origin back to the first Hamiltonians with their lists of the comic societies then existing in the college. Pictures of the various college organizations were first used in the "Hamiltonian" of the class of 1892. The class histories also are found in the very early books. Senior honor rolls date back to the 1893 "Hamiltonian" and Junior scurfs to the 1913 book.

Each year new departments and features have come to be added. Each succeeding year has witnessed a larger "Hamiltonian", just as it has witnessed a larger Hamilton.

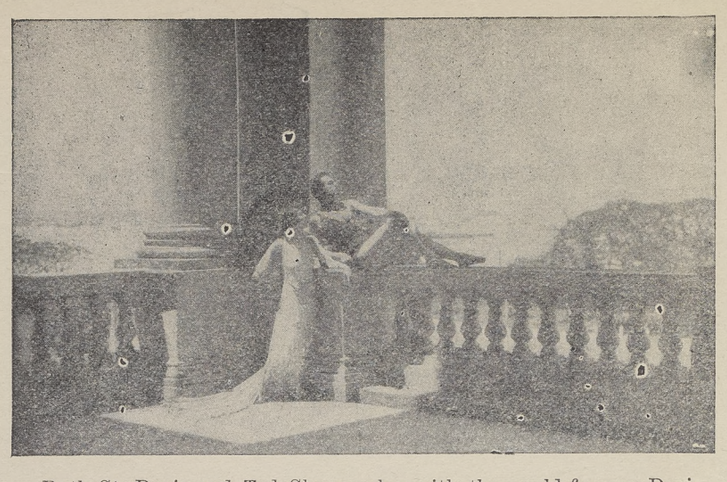
Word has recently been received from Charles H. Phelps, '24, who is the advance agent for the travelling college, which is voyaging around the world. Mr. Phelps precedes the ship and makes all arrangements with the governments and colleges at the places which the boat is to visit. He writes from India that they have gone through Japan, China, India, and have covered so far, over 21,000 miles. He says that the cruise is very successful.



Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn who, with the world-famous Denishawn Dancers, have been booked by Miss Gertrude Curran to appear in Utica at the Colonial Theater on the evening of January 12, are recognized by the foremost critics in the United States and continental Europe as the greatest of all artisitc dancers.

CROWDS HAVE VARYING INITIATION STANDARDS

Hamilton fraternities are very liberal as regards requirements for initiation, according to the results of an investigation conducted last week by Life. Six of the 11 fraternities on the Hill state that they initiate any pledge who passes enough hours to remain in college, while the five other crowds have certain definite requirements which they impose upon their pledges.

One crowd initiates no pledges who fail over six hours, regardless of whether or not he passes enough hours to keep him in college. The four remaining fraternities are still more strict, two having ruled that no man shall be initiated who does not pass at least 13 hours of work, and two others stating that they initiate no man from any class who fails more than three hours. Although some of these rules are doubltess very strict, it is not a very frequent occurrence for many men to be excluded from initiation because of poor scholarship.

As the general scholastic averages of crowds which have no such rules appear in no way to be inferior to the standings of crowds that have them, there is some doubt as to their real value after all. In fact, the fraternities leading in scholastic excellence are among those which impose no such requirements upon their pledges. However, it is the tendency among the national organizations to make such rules, the regulation being observed by all of the chapters of the fraternity. All of the crowds, however, that have chapters in other colleges, do not have such rules.

Compared with other colleges and universities in the United States, Hamilton is somewhat lax in this respect. Williams, Colgate, Dartmouth, Amherst, Cornell and other leading institutions have imposed general rules which all of the crowds must obey, regardless of the requirements of the individual organization.

Our Wish

"As you journey along life's great highway towards the summit of success may you be helped both onward and upward by each experience encountered and each obstacle overcome. May each sunrise bring you renewed courage and brighter hopes, each sunset a sense of accomplishment, and the night an abundance of rest and peace. May each cloud show you its silver lining, every difficult accomplishment teach you wisdom, and every sorrow be turned to an abounding happiness. At each turn of the road may you see a new and brighter vista of promise, and may you experience fulfillment of your highest aspirations"—is our wish for you at this Happy Season.

THREE HAMILTON MEN IN HARVARD SCHOOL

The following graduates of Hamilton College are at present enrolled in the Harvard Business School, according to an announcement from the office of the Dean of the School: W. Wayne McVay, Edmund F. O'Connel, and David D. Hays.

The School is now operating with a class entering at midyears for the benefit of students who are graduating from college at midyears or men who have been in business and found it desirable to take graduate training in business subjects. Men entering in this class will graduate from the School in February two years later. Inasmuch as the enrollment in this midyear class is limited, applications should be sent to the Harvard Business School before Jan. 15, 1927.

The next issue of Life will appear January 18th.

NEWMAN CLUB ACTS AS HOSTS TO M. M. MEMBERS

After the college meeting last Wednesday evening a joint meeting of the Newman and M. M. Clubs was held at the Delta Upsilon House. Because of the lateness of the hour the meeting was necessarily short. This meeting which was held with the Newman Club as hosts was the second of a series of joint meetings of the two clubs, the first of which was given by the M. M. Club. The purpose of these meetings is to bring these two organizations closer together and to eliminate some of the points of controversy between the two faiths.

Father Shannon of Clinton was the principal speaker at the meeting. He pointed out some of the salient points of Catholicism, showing what Catholics believe and their reasons for so believing. Dr. Philip Smead Bird of Utica was also a guest and said a few informal words to the members of the clubs.

It was decided that the next joint meeting of the clubs would be held by the M. M. Club shortly after the opening of the next term.

he left the forceps in Mrs. Vanderbilt." The first thing he admires in a reporter is the ability to say precisely what he means, no more and no less. The second thing is the ability to use old stereotyped phrases in an entirely new way. Thus did Ring Lardner when he said of Irvin Cobb, "He likes nothing better than to sit of an evening with his pipe and books, of which he has a complete set." The third thing is the ability to say a great deal in a few phrases, with an example of which Mr. Woollcott closed. Eugene Field criticised Preston Clark's performance of King Lear as follows: "He played the King through five acts as though he were afraid that at any minute someone might play the Ace."
